Ipswich High School Faculty 2014-2015

Dear Members of the Class of 2015,

Congratulations on your successful voyage through Ipswich High School! This yearbook will forever serve as a reminder of the hard work, dedication, and pure enjoyment that you and your classmates experienced while attending IHS. I hope that each of you feels prepared and energized for the next stages of your life and that you will always remember the role that Ipswich High School played in preparing you for that journey.

The Ipswich faculty and administration have enjoyed the leadership and positive energy that your class has provided. Every senior class leaves a characteristic mark and lasting impression on their school. The mark left by the Class of 2015 is one to reflect proudly upon.

All For One

The class of 2016 came together during spirit week this year. They put the past behind them and perservered to a close second place finish behind the seniors. After a rough two years of poor communication and lack of spirit, the Juniors were able to rally together for a memorable week.

Conference with Carly Coughlin

How have you contributed to the class as president?

"I think since I have become president I have helped our class become more unified."

Was spirit week as stressful as you thought it would be?

"Spirit week was not as stressful as I thought. Overall our class did alot better which helped to relieve a lot of my stess."

How has the class changed since freshman year?

"Looking back at freshman year our class has come a long way. We have become more unified and have learned to trust and accept each other."

Hard Work Pays Off

Throughout the years the Tigers have been a dynasty football team. In years prior, the team has struggled record-wise due to injuries with some of the key role players. Despite an early concussion injury to captain Eddie Flaherty, the Tigers prevailed and were able to defeat both the Georgetown Royals and Amesbury Indians. The Tigers may not have looked the best on paper, however, over the course of the season they proved themselves to be relentless and hardworking. The Tigers Defense has proven themselves strong throughout each and every game. Leaders on the defense include senior Corey Elliot, a league leader in tackles followed by powerhouse linebackers Matt Carey, Curtis Lemonosky, and Eddie Flaherty. Not to mention the ball hawking secondary, including Robbie Glavin, Vinny Martineau and safety Jake Long whose promising season was brought to end after suffering a hand injury.

Meet the Lady Tigers

The cheerleading team had yet another successful season. They kicked things off by winning grand champions at CALS, followed by a first place win at the North Regional Championship, and second place at the State Championship. The ladies knew that once they made it past regionals, state competition would present a much greater challenge. "We were up against equally talented teams which created tough competition for us," said senior Erin Lally. Despite recieving a bid to Nationals, the cheerleaders decided against it as they were already content with the results from their season. With six graduating seniors and a new coaching staff for next year the team knows they are up against a great challenge. But if this season is any indication of their capabilities then they can remain optimistic about their fall season next year.

An Unforgettable Season

"We have a lot of new runners that added depth to our team," said Senior Captain Annie Zampitella reflecting upon the season. "It's good to have depth, because it's not always the top three runners that matter; it's the 5th, 6th, 7th that get the points that can decide the meet."

Girls cross country has a lot to be proud of, finishing with a 7-3 record. Despite a few setbacks throughout the season, such as the storm in September that destroyed their home course, and later being forced to relocate to a new course at the Crane Estate, the team persevered. The girls managed an impressive finish, pulling out notable wins against Masco and Pentucket. The team trained long and hard, attending Green Mountain Running Camp over the summer, as well as a workout program called Going the Distance. "We have so much fun together and we have become a really close team," said Zampitella; "More than half of our team are seniors, so we are really hoping this program will continue to grow as we move on." The girls continued on to post-season meets, including CALs and divisional competition.

Running to Victory

Boys cross country team had a fun season, finishing with a of 2-8-0 record. Throughout the season the top seven finishers varied, which helped strengthen the team. "A lot of us ran with or near each other, which really helped us push each other especially at the ends of tough races," said senior captain Luke Sirois. The seniors could not have asked for a better last season, and cannot wait to see where the team will go in the next couple of years. "We have some really strong underclassmen who helped us get lots of points," Sirois reflected. The team worked really hard all season, and it will be exciting to see where they go in the next couple of years. They built a strong foundation this year.

Playing with Heart

Liza Statile enthusiastically explained about all the changes happening on the varsity soccer team this year: "We have a lot of new players, with a lot of talent and heart, and now we're digging deep to take us to the next level." Eliza seemed optimistic about the upcoming season, "We are hoping to get some big wins soon. We are coming off a rough start but hopefully in the next few games will really prove our talent and all the effort we have put in to make it worth it."

What has it been like being on Varsity?

'It's a quite a standard to live up to; you set an example for the whole entire program. As a result we try to do your best to prove to the younger kids you can work hard and make it worth it. I think it's great to play at the next level against some really good teams. It's fun to keep pushing yourself and seeing what you can achieve."

Strategy

Dubious Horizons

The Ipswich boys varsity soccer team had braced themselves for a rocky start. With only six upperclassmen returning and a new coach, perhaps they were right to be apprehensive. 'Several seniors graduated so we knew we would go through the season with a very young team. Our old coach was unable to return this year. We didn't have very high expectations for what we would accomplish," says senior captain Sam Benford. As luck would have it, the new coach, Greg Scruton "was just the right coach for a team in our situation."

Coach Greg Scruton, returning to lpswich after a ten year hiatus, pushed the team to their limits during preseason, ensuring their fitness and "allowing [them] a chance to face the bigger, faster, and stronger teams." After winning the first two games, the season was off to a solid start and Scruton's efforts were paying off.

In spite of what could be perceived as success, "we had a problem with yellow cards," leaving the two Benford brothers ineligible for some of the final games. In the end, this setback only strengthened the team. "They realized they didn't need [Sam] or Max to succeed and that allowed other people to step up and play important roles. Once we got back they were more confident and didn't rely solely on us."

The team made it incredibly close to a third straight state tournament, but missed by one game. The loss really stung the team because, in Sam's view 'the team was good enough to make it to the state tournament. It was unfortunate we did'nt."

Despite the unfortunate failure, the team has a number of accomplishments under their belt. They beat state champs, Georgetown in the ALS cup, and tied both Lynnfield (#1) and Manchester Essex (#2) in their second encounters. In spite of much struggle, the season ended on a positive note. If think the year was successful in terms of having fun, because the year was a blast," Sam said.

Sister Sass

he Field Hockey Team had three sets of sisters this fall season, Ciara (jr.) and Deirdre (fr.) O'flynn, Nikki (sr.) and Sydney (so.) Pignone, and Maddi (sr.) and Savanna (jr.) Hill. With so many sets of siblings on one team, there are a lot of sibling rivalries. As older sisters, Ciara, Nikki, and Maddi all have different opinions about their younger sisters being on the team. "I'm glad we finally got to play on the same team; her hard work as a goalie has really helped us," said Nikki. Maddi, had a similar response to Nikki stating, "We've played together before, we always know how to help each other on the field." However, Ciara had a different opinion about sharing the field with her freshman sister: "I love her... but I don't love this," said Ciara. Having so many sets of siblings on one team can get to be a handful sometimes, especially with so much "sister sass," a saying well known to the field hockey team.

Filling the Gaps

After losing six of their starting eight from last year, the Tigers had some big gaps to fill this year. While Captains Chris Grady and Jake Reedy have been an active part of the starting lineup in years prior, the majority of the team lacked this same experience. Rising to the occasion this year were (Junior) Will Wallace, (Sophomores) Dan Leff, Jack Maino, Killian Morrissey, Stephen Solimeno, and (Freshman) Aiden Hammond. Despite their relatively young team, the Tigers had some big wins this year and hope to use this season as a stepping stone to next year's season.

Members of the new IHS club volleyball team didn't know what to expect when they stepped onto the court for the first day of practice. During their first season, Senior Captains Hannah Quinn, Marley Henderson, and Jackie Gagnon led their team to a successful record, with many wins over strong rival teams. The Lady Tigers hope to grow their numbers in the coming years as they establish a volleyball program and build a varsity team. This season marked the start to a bright future for the volleyball team.

Pep Band

Football Sax

Anagh Tiwary has come a long way since the beginning of his saxophone career. His dedication and hard work have made him a great asset to the IHS Pep Band. Anagh loves playing at the games. According to him, "It's great, your friends are there, you're playing music and feel a really positive atmosphere." It's not always about what's happening on the field for the Pep Band, "Regardless of whether the team wins or not we are having a great time, and are there to support the lpswich community. It's a really fun time out there."

Dole Patrol

Believe it or not, Pep Band hasn't always been as successful as it is today. According to Mr. Dolan "Pep Band is getting a lot bigger and better. It used to be just a marching band, then we asked if we could play at the games instead." Pep Band is there to support the football team just like bands have done for many years. Not only does it excite the musicians but "We have a lot of people from other schools compliment us, telling us the band sounds great."

According to Mr. Dalton, Homecoming has evolved through several iterations over the years. Historically, Homecoming has revolved around the annual Thanksgiving day football game. From bonfires to skits, competitions to rallies, Homecoming has always included an assortment of activities. It's been years since loswich has recognized Homecoming, but this year, that changed. "I think it's great Homecoming is being revived," Mr. Dalton reflects. "I love anything that contributes to school spirit," he adds.

HOMECOMING A Black & White Affair

his year, Homecoming included a black and white emed semi-formal dance. The dance took place the turday night after Sprit Week. Senior Class Secretary d Homecoming Commitee member Kaitlin Robinson plained, "We wanted to make Homecoming something n so in years to follow classes will keep up the tradition." e Homecoming Committee was triumphant. With over 00 kids in attendance, Homecoming was wildly successful.

"When I first walked out I thought, 'holy crap I'm going to fall', but when we got to the end it was exhilarating because everyone was screaming our names and taking our pictures. It felt like we were movie stars," said Heather. In itself, the fashion show is notorious for ramping up nerves but overall the memories were nothing but rewarding. Playing with Pride

The girls basketball program has had a rough couple of years. Working to rebuild the team after several coaching changes and graduating many players, the going hasn't been easy. In spite of all this, the team has had a fairly successful season with head coach Doug Woodworth. Whether they win, lose, or tie, "The girls always play with pride," says Coach Woodworth. The girls' biggest rival, Manchester Essex, put up a fight after losing to the lpswich girls. In past seasons Manchester Essex beat lpswich all three games of the season, but this year lpswich gave them a run for their money. The team is positive that through their hard work and determination they will have a shot at making the State Tournament this year.

Intensity

The IHS boys basketball team was cautiously optimistic coming into the '14'15 season. They knew their defense and hard work would be their ticket to the playoffs, showing this early in the season with a hard fought 46-43 win over Amesbury, losing a back and forth game to Rockport in double overtime, and losing by three points to an 8-0 Lynnfield team. The squad played with the swagger and attitude the program had lacked in recent years. Playing with a chip on their shoulders, they and asserted themselves as a threat in the Cape Ann League. Lead by senior captains Aleks Kuljic, Chris Remy, and Robbie Glavin, and a talented junior class, the team positioned themselves as a tournament favorite. In truly playing by their motto, "Respect All Fear None," they set the tone for the program for years to come.

The swim team is a great representation of hard work and dedication. Many of the team members are looking to break school records this season. Senior Captain Josh Colameta and varsity swimmer Jacquelyn Bouvier are both attempting to break records in their individual events. Josh is looking to break the record for the 50 meter free, and Jackie is trying to break a record in the 500 meter free. Colameta shared he would be extremely excited if he could accomplish this but said "If I don't break the record I've had a really great run, and have loved every minute of it." The members always support each other during pratices and meets no matter what. One swimmer says that "Every person who competes has good sportsmanship. New Kids on the Track

Almost every event lost a scoring senior at the end of last year, setting the stage for a difficult 2015 season. Against all odds the boys team reigned victorious, enjoying early sweeps straight out of the blocks against both Lynnfield and Essex Tech. They moved on to score big in the Reggie Lewis State Relay meet, medaling several times. Many attribute these initial successes to underclassmen runners rising to the occasion. In the words of Junior team captain Josh Brown, "A lot of these younger kids stepped up, Charlie Gillis and Mikey Dags(D'Agostino) to name a few." Many teammates acknowledge the contribution of young talent this season, something made possible by support provided by the senior veterans of the team.

Outstanding Legacy

This season began with an air of trepidation and anticipation. Runners, jumpers, and shot putters alike were glad to get back in gear on the track and field. Junior team captain Emily Demarco was among them. "I was really excited for this track season. I got to run the mile indoors for my first time!" she said. In fact, many students were trying new events and excelling at them. Unswerving freshman, Audrey McMorrow, switched from the dash to hurdles early in the season and scored a position on the relay team. The talent of the girls track team earned them wins left and right, culminating in an overall 4th place out of 24 teams at the Reggie Lewis State Relay meet, January 10th, 2015. The girls' tenacity has left them confident they will maintain their undefeated record, staying true to the Girls Indoor Track legacy.

In addition to their defensive abilities, the Vikings also have time working in their favor. "We're definitely a young team right now, but... as the kids get older, their skill level is only going to get better," Castonguay noted. With this in mind, the have Vikings much to look forward to in the next couple of years. New Team Old Sport

This year girls in Ipswich have had the chance to compete in a hockey league of their own. Although female hockey players have always had the opportunity to play for the Rockport-Ipswich co-op boys team, being the only girl on an all boys team wasn't ideal. Fortunately, the addition of the Beverly co-op team has successfully bridged this gap. This new team has not only allowed the girls to compete, but has also cultivated new relationships. Sophomore McKinely Carpa believes "We've all bonded together nicely and have gotten to get to know each other." Although these relationships have contributed to the team's success they aren't the only important ones. The cooperation between Ipswich and Beverly High School is one that has set a precedent for girls in the future. Now, female hockey players will always be able to play for a team, ensuring success in the the future.

Moves on the Mat

Some might think the hardest part of wrestling is having the strength to pin your opponent to the mat. In reality, there's much more to it. "The hardest part of being on the wrestling team was the practice every day. Memorizing new moves, and conditioning was rough," said senior captain, Charlie Galanis. Charlie, an All Star wrestler, explained his team's successes and challenges throughout the season: "Being on a co-op team with Georgetown didn't really make a difference. We practiced together every day, we grew closer, and forgot about any rivalries between the two schools." New coach, Ryan Archambault helped lead the team to a solid finish. More importantly, they became a strong group of wrestlers. In the end, Charlie finished undefeated for the season. Cut from the basketball team in 6th grade, Charlie has paved the way for others to find success, leaving some big shoes to fill next year.

Vaulting Toward Glory

Senior Angus Mauser admits, "I didn't know gymnastics was an option until I was a sophomore." It seems many others at IHS are also unaware. When asked to name winter sports, 60% of students omit gymnastics from their list, and when prompted, 20% were unaware of the team entirely. Co-op teams present some challenges as those on the wrestling and hockey teams understand. However, those teams had a much higher rate of recognition. This did not deter Angus. 'I don't think it really matters, it doesn't affect the team itself. We have a lot of new freshmen and have already won more meets than our last two years combined," he said. Hopefully as the team succeeds recognition will continue to grow.

Matt Naeger (left), suffering a torn ACL during football season, ended up on crutches for Cotillion. One might think having surgery just a few short days prior to the dance would have left Matt miserable on his crutches. Instead, the opposite was true. Matt was surrounded by his friends all night, making every hobbled moment worth it. At one point Sam Duffield and Matt even raised the crutches as a prop in their dancing. Strumming chords all night, these musical guys deserve props for putting a smile on the faces of everyone around them.

nna Gibbs and other members of Aseension lemorial Church of Ipswich went on a missions rip to Cuba. I was worried that the Cubans would be unwelcoming to us because our governments don't get along. They ended up being so kind. They would stop us in the street and just have eonversations with us." Anna and other nembers of Aseension Memorial went to try to connect with a Church in Cuba. Even though they were only there a week, leaving was difficult after building such strong friendships. "Sometimes I wish was back in Cuba. In America we are bombarded with media, and in Cuba you are surrounded by down to earth people. I felt like we could keep making a difference, if we were there longer we could have done more." - Anna Gibbs

On April 11th, 2014, the Class of 2015 gathered together for a special night at the Hellenic Center in Ipswich. As everyone arrived in their handsome suits and beautiful gowns, it started to rain, driving everyone inside. There, they dazzled, dined and danced the night away, breaking down to Lil' Wayne, and singing along to Taylor Swift. Despite the rain outside, there was life to the party. With one final push of excitement, people rushed to the dessert line, piling the goodies into their ice cream bowls. Another successful prom in the books!

Pretty In Pink

Elegance

Kristin Klimowicz had a blast last year at Junior Prom. "I had an amazing time with my friends. The music sounded great and the food was so tasty." Getting ready for prom, for most girls including Kristin was a lot of fun. The rain was a dissapointment for those in attendence. Overall, Kristin believed "as a class we were able to turn it into a night to remember."

National Honor Society

National Honor Society is a national organization established to recognize outstanding high school students and their achievements. Every year NHS holds multiple events to help raise money for not only the club, but also a chosen organization; This year they have chosen to donate to the National Institute for Brain Research. "Most importantly we are trying to help the community," explains NHS President, Anagh Tiwary. The most anticipated event held by NHS is the Senior Citizen Prom. "It's fun to see them reliving the prom experience," says Anagh. As for future students hesitant to apply, take the advice of senior NHS member Maggie Brown. "Just go for it. You never know what's going to happen and you have nothing to lose." NHS doesn't just look at academics either, they also recognize positions of leadership, as well as each student's drive and work

Collaboration

Interact Club strives to help the community, whether cleaning parks or holding large events, such as the Jingle Ball Walk. "I've been on the planning committee for three years," explains Claire Frey."We start in early October and get everything set up. The club members dress up as elves and go on a parade from the town green to Town Hall, where the kids can play different games." Last year the club was able to raise about $1,200, and hope to raise $2,000 this year. Not only do they hold events for the community, but they also strive to improve the club and share ideas. Every year the group travels to the UN in New York and collaborates with other clubs to learn about different events and fundraisers. "It's fun to be involved with something on such a large scale," says club Secretary Alice Hurst-McDonald. Interact Club is a great way to bond with students from other grades while helping community, and the world beyond.

ENVIRONMENTAL CLUB

Have you ever seen people trying to sell travel cups and cider around school? What about the garden by the Project Adventure course? Those are all thanks to the Environmental Club, who are always working to clean up our community. Every week the club holds meetings where they talk about different ways everyone can help. One memorable meeting was when the officers talked about vegetarianism, and how your diet can help the environment and your body.

The group asked people outside the club to come and talk about why they chose to be vegetarian, whether it be by religion or personal choice. These great meetings happen because of the dedication of the officers. "I wanted to be president of the club because I love the environment and wamted to show people how easy it is to help," explains club President, Anna Gibbs. One major goal the club has set, and recently achieved is to install a new filtered water bubbler in the halls. The system they will install produces of clean, filtered water, has a sensor-activated water bottle filler, and includes a screen showing how many plastic bottles have been saved when filling a reusable bottle.

Collaboration

t's not easy helping rebuild a community on a different continent, but that's exactly what Friends of Kpelezo does. In 2011, Susan Monahan (Club Advisor), was approached by a member of the Kpelezo community in Ghana. Moved by his letter, he corresponded with friends and family to nelp raise money for the community school. Since then the group has started and completed projects such as renovating school buildings, installing electrical service, purchasing school uniforms, and supporting the lunch program. Thanks to the work of Friends of Kpelezo, the school was awarded a Certificate of Registration from the Ghana Education Service on July 22nd, 2013.

FRIENDS of KPELEZO

This past year the group held their 3rd Annual Pace for Kpelezo, a 5k race through the Mile Lane cross country course in Ipswich. As well as a 5k, a Fun Run was available for children, involving trampolines, hula hoops and more. The club has nearly 26 members from Ipswich High School, as well as IHS alumni, and five leaders on the Board of Directors. Friends of Kpelezo hopes to plan more service trips in the future, helping build new classrooms and bring supplies to the community.

Among many other projects to support the Kpelezo Village, last summer a group of members traveled to the village and made matching tie-dye t-shirts with the children. These shirts will be cherished for many years not just because of the memories, but because they're some of the only shirts the children own.

Homecoming & Spirit Week

change students visiting Ipswich. Never having reperienced anything similar in their native countries, our even exchange students were more than excited about the lea of dressing up for and participating in the many activites of the week. From the pie eating contest, to musical nairs, not to mention the Talent Show, the week showed tem that competitive spirits are an integral part of the merican high school experience.

rrounded by her JV teammates, Severine wears r pink soccer shirt before a breast cancer areness night game in the stadium.

Soccer, called "football" in the rest of the world, is the national sport in France and in Brazil. Two exchange students, Severine Cherdeville and Lucas Aravjo, joined soccer teams. Unlike Lucas, who played the sport in his home country, it was in Ipswich that Severine Cherdeville first tried this sport. Encouraged by the Rotary Club, Severine said she joined the team in order to avoid the 20lbs typically gained by exchange students in the US.

According to all exchange students, the best part of a year sproad are the friendships you make. Friendships made during this adventure are truly valuable, whether they are rade with other exchange students or with people from teir host country. "People that we have met during this par are like a second family; American people are friendly, hey have shown us lot of things which sometimes are formmon for them and just incredible for us." - Severine (herdeville)

Dr. Ladd

Richard, Dick, D-Ladd, Le docteur

Dr. Richard Ladd, known as Dr. Ladd to his students, has been a foreign language teacher and head of the language department at IHS for 31 years. He is fluent in French and English, and can hold a conversation in German, Greek and Russian. He also has an extensive background in Latin, Spanish and Italian. Over the years he has taught all levels of French and Spanish and has taught countless independent studies in various languages. He created the course "Much Latin, Less Greek." He is also an accomplished author, having written the nations' leading AP French textbook.

For the past 31 years Dr. Ladd has been a vital part of the IHS teaching staff. "The idea of him not being here. . .is hard to fathom," said Mrs. Killian, a colleague, close friend and former student of Dr. Ladd's. She adds that Dr. Ladd leaving is "the end of an era."

When asked about his favorite memory of IHS over the years, he thought briefly before responding, "My French class of 2015."

Dr. Ladd gives all of himself to his students, every day. He is more than just a teacher to many of his students. He is a role model, a mentor, a listener, and a friend. "There is not a day that I walk out of this building I have not seen somebody do his or her personal best, reach a mountain they never thought they could climb, or do something extraordinary in my classroom. I work with the most amazing children who will not stop when they get to the mountaintop. When they get to the mountaintop they have to find the skyhook for the ladder. I cannot believe what kids give back to me."

Mr. Dolan

Gerald, Gerry, Dolepatrol, Dolan

Mr. Dolan, esteemed music director at Ipswich High School, has been conductiong the band for 30 years. Mainly a trumpet player, he has also studied a variety of other instruments throughout his lifetime. He can play every instrument in the brass section, the clarinet, the saxophone, flute and many other instruments. Most of his studies over the past 15 years have been conducting studies. Even though Mr. Dolan did not start the Jazz program, students playing under his baton have won many awards over the years.

Throughout his teaching career at IHS, Mr. Dolan has been a great influence on many of his students. Muscian and student, Eric Duback says "Mr. Dolan always pushes everyone to be better. He managed to take a group of over 150 students every year and create an exemplary music progam."

When asked what he will miss the most from his past years, Mr. Dolan said, "The thing I'll miss the most are the students. The progress we've made has been remarkable." Just like always, he is very happy with the commitment his students put into the music.

Mr. Dolan has definitely accomplished a lot for both the students and the program. "Beyond being a great conductor and teacher, Mr. Dolan is a mentor to many of his students," said Duback. Mr. Dolan explained that he "feels very proud of the music program and it's not just me. It's all the music teachers... and we've all worked really hard. We have made great accomplishments over the years." Mr. Dolan's passion and effort within the Music Department have left an enduring mark on IHS that will be remembered for many years to come.

MUSIC

Reflections of... Harmony

Grand Finale

Over the years, many students have developed a relationship with Mr. Dolan that inspires them to work harder not only in band, but in academic classes as well. Since most band students have been working with Mr. Dolan as early as sixth grade, they have bonded and formed a very close student-teacher relationship. This relationship has pushed students to try their best and master their instruments. Students have had Mr. Dolan as a director for so long they feel the need to impress him more than anyone else. "I've auditioned in front of a ton of judges, but I am always most nervous when I play in front of Mr. Dolan," confessed senior, Anagh Tiwary (pictured right). Students have nothing but respect for Mr. Dolan. There is a certain charisma in the music department that leads to mutual respect between teachers and students. Senior, Nora McMorrow states, "I don't think that there's anyone who doesn't respect him [Mr. Dolan]." Concert Band has been such a success over the years thanks to good relationships and the perfect harmony of the band as a whole.

Far Left: Mr. Dolan introduces the piece The Most Wonderful Time of the Year. Center Left: Senior Eric Duback gives Mr. Dolan his full attention as he waits for his cue to start playing melodious tones on his upright bass. Center Right: Senior Eliza Statile's concentration paid off while performing The Sussex Mummers Christmas Carol flawlessly on her clarinet. Musical Escapes

Many students participate in our high school concert band despite being involved with other extra-curricular activities. Mr. Dolan is amazed by the dedication and commitment each student contributes with every activity they participate in. "The progress that we've made has been remarkable," exclaims Mr. Dolan. When the hallways clear after second period, the students settle down in class and free their minds in the music. The students find going to band in the middle of the day helps them forget about all of their studies and sports, and gives them time to concentrate on the music. Many students use music as an escape, whether it's attending concerts in school, going to class and playing their instrument during the day, or even listening to their own favorite artist or band. "Tuba is my drug of choice," Senior, Nora McMorrow confesses. As Mr. Dolan says, "What we've built here is really special," despite the students using music as an escape, they spend their extra time practicing and working hard on the songs in band. "So, I feel very proud of it," smiles Mr. Dolan.

Conducting Quality

2015 was the first year of Mr. Seapy's tenure as orchestra director for the loswich High School music program. Mr. Seapy had previously completed his undergraduate work at lpswich in 2008 as a student teacher and returned this year as the orchestra director. "It felt like coming home because this was my first public school experience. Mr. Dolan and I go way back, and it was really cool to come back to the same music faculty. It was almost like old friendships were being started over again." Mr. Seapy took over the position from former Orchestra director, Mrs. Billings-white, who had led the Orchestra for several years before her departure last year. The Music Program staff were extremely helpful and made the transition much easier for the new orchestra conductor, even departing orchestra director Mrs. Billings-White "She made the transition really easy from my perspective, even though it's always difficult to replace such a well-loved teacher." The Ipswich High School music program has always had an excellent reputation. Students are known for character and an excellent work ethic. "The students here are receptive and eager to help, and that's something that makes this learning community successful; the students here are committed to the music with no real pushback." With the added responsibility of his title comes the pressure of the Ipswich music program, one that Mr. Seapy is more than ready to handle. "One of the most important messages that I wanted to set up initially is that I really care about the students as people, and I care about the music. I wanted to make sure that they saw that the genuine care, and that I was serious about being the best conductor I could be."

Musical Multimedia Experience

The 2014-2015 IHS Symphony Orchestra began the year in an impressive fashion. The high level of performances set the stage for the rest of the year. Under the new leadership of Mr. Seapy, the orchestra managed to pull off a great Winter Concert which involved some very unique ideas. One of the more unique and refreshing moments of the night was the footage of Lily Stewart's sled dog racing over the Iditarod piece, which many saw as the highlight of the night. "Mr. Seapy approached me in the beginning of the year. I knew my race video, along with some scenic clips, would be perfect," said Stewart. The video and the orchestra synced together well, creating perfect visual and auditory harmony. "I think the video really matched right up with the song. There were highs and lows in the video, much like the melody and transitions in the song. Also, we had a nice mixture of relaxing scenic clips and intense race footage, to match the different tempos." Overall this year of orchestra was successful, thanks to the new leadership according to Lily Stewart. "Mr. Seapy and the orchestra did a fantastic job. We all worked together to make something that IHS hasn't seen before - a multimedia orchestral performance."

Confident Voices

Chambers is a select audition only group that meets to create cherished pieces of music. There are sixteen members of Chambers which dedicate their own time twice a week to do what they love. What makes this vocal group different from the other select groups, is that it includes both boys and girls. With such variety in sound, the group is able to produce unique arrangements. Most of the members of chambers enjoyed singing "Oh Lux". This piece was "a difficult piece to learn because it was in Latin and a capella." Zoe Gillette, a member of Chambers for the past four years explains, "Every year is a new year with new singers. It has been weird watching new people gradually replace everyone else and become one of the older members." Almost all of the members of Chambers have said that being part of the group has made them much more confident singers.

Beautiful Bel Canto

Bel Canto is a select audition-only group that meets twice a week. The select eleven girls in Bel Canto this year use their unique voices to produce angelic pieces of music. The limited membership forces the girls to know their part and sing out. Seniors Linda Barg and Emma Johnson have been in Bel Canto all four years and are sad to say their goodbyes. "Being in Bel Canto has been a really fun experience, I love making good music with such a great group of students," Emma explains. As well as the departing seniors, the underclassmen in Bel Canto stated, "We have definitely grown close to each other this year. It's going to be hard not seeing each other." Bel Canto is a great way for new friendships to form over their mutual love for singing. Despite being an all girls singing group, the girls have managed to develop each one of their voices uniquely, rounding out their sound more fully.

r the chorus, harmonizing goes beyond the music. Having solid lationships is an essential element to the success of the group. Although a lit of the students involved in chorus previously had connections to each cher, junior Alice Hurst believes that 'throughout the year, singing with each other brings us a lot closer". Being such a close group, the chorus has sepped up and been able to face issues together, such as the group losing sme key members. "We had a lot of really talented seniors leave last year," Alice explains, 'but I feel like we've really stepped it up and ererybody works together to be the best we can be." Working together is also lead to many successes for the group, the Winter Concert being the of their best. Reflecting back on it, Alice states: 'I thought we sunded really good. When we reviewed it, it was a good performance we sere all very proud of."

Diary of Anne Frank

After the retirement of Mrs. Faust, Ms. Hasselbacher took the reigns. As with any change, her second year brought a different flavor to the performing arts in lpswich. One noteworthy aspect of change has been her apt selection of different plays, such as The Diary of Anne Frank. One audience member saw the performance of Anne Frank as "a good change of pace from the musicals before."

For weeks on end actors, actresses, techies, and techlings worked to ensure the show turned out well. For sure, the play was a success, allowing the audience to feel, and fall in love with the story and characters. "I feel I can relate to Anne, being a teenager myself," one viewer said.

The production was beautiful, and something quite different fom what we've seen in recent years. Sofia Gadbois, who played Anne said, "I had to take the play a lot more seriously, since there was a lot more emotion." Sofia also said that she felt like performing certain passages in The Diary of Anne Frank made them "a part of her life."

The production ushered in a new era of plays, that will forever change the Ipswich Drama Program.

Certain students in the drama department take on both a tech role, and an acting role. These students are known as "tactors". Tactors are constantly running between their scenes, changing costumes, and moving set pieces. These students spend weeks building sets, and rehearsing for parts. Hours upon hours are spent juggling many different tasks, all for the sake of the production. Senior Josh Colameta, who tacted in The Diary of Anne Frank said "...it's a little bit more stress, but it's all fun." Tactors are a different breed of unsung heroes of the theater. To balance the heavy stress of both the crew and company worlds, the tactors are the few who dare to do so. Along with the stress in the theater, students have the stress of school, family, friends and work to deal with. It takes a special kind of person to want to do this. Would you?

The Company

(Missing): Heather Colter, Benjamin Hills, Kaitlyn Fullerton, Shannon Halliday.

The Ipswich High School Drama Company, otherwise known as "The Company", has a special place in the hearts of the students here in Ipswich. "The Company is a way to be more confident and try new things," said actor Mason Sirois. He also agreed that he feels as though he is more confident and outgoing in the theatre. Students for years have used The Company as a getaway from the stress they face every day. People don't realize what goes on behind the scenes of a theater production. It's a choreographed masterpiece, made from time and pressure. The Company is more than just a drama group. It is a family.

MESSAGE FROM THE DIRECTOR

What a phenomenal cast and crew I was privileged to work with as the director of the 2014 fall production of The Diary of Anne Frank!

They rose to the challenge of portraying the characters of such an iconic play with a level of maturity that surpassed my highest expectations. Our wonderful actors and production staff demonstrated a high level of cooperation and teamwork to produce a truly remarkable performance.

Good luck to the seniors, a very talented group of actors, scenic artists, stage managers, set builders and costume assistants, they will be sorely missed!

For years the High School Company's technicians, or Crew, have worked countless hours around the clock to make sure each production is perfect. The tech crew this year was supervised by Mr. Ames, and run by students Julia Sabbagh, Zoe Gillette, and Emma Freeman. Ipswich High School Technicians have been recognized many times throughout the years; recieving "Best Tech", "Set Excellence", and "Effective Set Changes". Crew continues to impress us with each performance.

lpswich High School offers many different types of art classes. From Painting, to Drawing, Sculpting to Ceramics and Photography, artists of all kinds can fulfill their cravings. Everyone gets to express their emotions through their artwork. Every artist gets to use their chosen creative medium to capture their unique perspective. This year student artists created book covers, bowls, paintings, and prints. The many choices available to students allows them to create a striking variety, art they can imagine.

Creativity

From the Lake to the Art Room

Brooke Fitzgerald (below) worked during an independent study to draw this picture of two hands interlocking (left). Her inspiration came from a photograph she took of her two best friend's hands while on a seven day hike in New Hampshire. Brooke participated in a four month invite-only leadership development program on Lake Winnipesaukee over the summer. Her experiences there inspired her to create works of art reflecting on her time in the program.

Reflections of... Summer 2014

The Best of Summer

Summer Sweets

"The River Store has the best chocolate chip cookies," said senior Kaysee Lemonosky

Daily Activities

Junior Will Wallace's favorite thing to do in the summer is "To go fishing at Middle Ground with my friends."

Summer Camps

Sophomore Tommy Cressey enjoys the water much like Will, but would rather, "Go to sailing camp at the Ipswich Bay Yacht Club because I love the nautical competition between myself, and the tides."

Fourth of July Festivities

Senior Erin Lally loves "Having a barbecue with friends, watching fireworks, and dressing in patriotic colors."

A Note From Your President . . .

For the past 12 years, we've seen the same faces in the hall, played on the same teams, performed together in the same band, and explored the Adirondacks together. We've experienced the Winthrop/Doyon rivalry and the Kiva/Kayak split, but it was in high school that we threw that all aside. Through four IHS spirit weeks we came together in a wild bonanza of musical, athletic, and spirit-filled talent. From Town Hall dances, to Prom at the Castle, and through a very memorable Senior Week, we have grown close to one another. As we leave lpswich High School and venture off into the "real" world, those familiar faces in the halls will disappear, gathering at Friday night football games only as spectators. As we complete this epic time in our lives, we start fresh. This is a scary thought; our upcoming chapters will contain ups and downs, moments of joy, and moments of loss. But we write the next chapters, we hold the pen, and I urge you to enjoy your life, enjoy your book, and make it something worth reading.

6 BROWN SQUARE IPSWICH, MA

Lt is not the critic who counts; not the man who points out how the strong man stumbles, or where the doer of deeds could have done them better. The credit belongs to the man who is actually in the arena, whose face is marred by dust and sweat and blood; who strives valiantly; who errs, who comes up short again and again, because there is no effort without error and shortcoming; but who does actually strive to do the deeds; who knows great enthusiasms, the great devotions; who spends himself in a worthy cause; who, at the best knows in the end the triumph of high achievement, and who at the worst, if he fails, at least fails while daring greatly, so that his place shall never be with those cold and timid
